The Independent Living Center of Southern California, Inc. (ILCSC) is a non-profit 501 (c)(3) consumer-based, non-residential agency providing a wide range of services to a growing population of people with disabilities and seniors. The ILCSC is dedicated to providing the services which will offer persons with disabilities and seniors the opportunity to seek an individual course towards independence, while educating the community.

ILCSC was established in 1976, and the Service Office was named in honor of its founder, Darrell McDaniel. ILCSC serves a large geographic area: Glendale, Burbank, the San Fernando Valley, and Santa Clarita; Northern Los Angeles County, including the Antelope Valley.

ILCSC operations are highly dependent upon community support and individual benefactors. Corporate and foundation contributions, grants/contracts, as well as year-round in-kind donations and volunteer services are gratefully received.

Independent Living Center of Southern California

Serving persons with disabilities and seniors since 1976

California Community Transitions

The Independent Living Center of Southern California (ILCSC) is a Lead Organization (LO) in the California Community Transitions (CCT) Project.

The mutual objective of the LO and the State of California is to assist Medi-Cal beneficiaries, who have continuously resided in a health care facility for at least three months, to successfully transition to a community living arrangement.

This is a voluntary project. If you are eligible and interested, there may be things to consider with your family, friends and doctor.

What to Consider...

- . Where and with whom do you want to live?
- . What can you do for yourself?
- . What do you need assistance with?
- . What, (if any) resources do you have available?
- . Is transportation available for your doctor visits, shopping and other trips?

The ILCSC Transition Specialist (TS) can assist you by

- . Talking to you about where you want to live and receive services.
- . Exploring services and supports that are available in your home community.
- . Helping you talk about the program with your physician and other people you have authorized.
- . Planning and coordinating your return to community living.

If You

- . Have lived continuously in a hospital, a nursing or sub acute care facility, or an intermediate care facility for three months or longer; and
- . Want more information about moving to your own place with services you need; and
- . Will work on a plan with a Transition Specialist, your doctor, family, and others who support you moving; and
- . Are Medi-Cal eligible...

Procedures and Guidelines for Transition Services

- Program Eligibility - Any person with a disability or senior in a health care facility for at least three months, who is Medi-Cal eligible, and may benefit from these services, is eligible regardless of disability, race, creed, nationality, age or ability to pay.
- Application - A call to the local ILCSC office by the client, family member, friend, or referring agency required. Application information may be taken over the phone.
- Interview Process - Prior to community transition, an initial and second interview will be conducted.
- Service Plan - Service needs are self-determined. During a joint meeting with the TS, a service plan will be developed to support the client. For services beyond the scope of the ILCSC, clients are referred to appropriate resources.
- Evaluation - Three Quality of Life surveys will be conducted following community transition.
